The Botanical Society of America is seeking proposals from selected certified public accounting firms that have extensive experience in providing audit and tax services to nonprofit associations.

I. INTRODUCTION TO THE BSA

The Botanical Society of America (BSA) was founded in 1893, incorporated in 1939, and presently has approximately 3,000 members in the United States and several foreign countries. The majority of our members work in academic settings as professors and as researchers with their own labs. Approximately 25% of our members are students studying in the field of botany, plant science or evolutionary plant biology.

BSA is a 501c(3) nonprofit professional association with a September 30 year-end. The Society is governed by a Board of Directors, composed of volunteers that work in the field of botany. Officers, Board members, and committee chairs are also volunteers and are scattered mainly throughout the US and Canada. Organizational operations are administered by a full-time staff of ten. Out of the ten paid employees, seven reside at our national office in St. Louis, MO, and three work remotely from their home offices in Ohio and California.

Membership dues represent just under 10% of the BSA’s annual revenue. Revenue in the last several years has fluctuated between $1.6 – 3 million. The most significant sources of revenue come from journal subscription income through our publishing partner (Wiley) and NSF grant funding (2-3 grants) for educational and outreach programs. Other revenue sources include investment income, an annual scientific conference, and fees for association management services to two other smaller scientific societies with similar goals. The BSA relies on many volunteers to help with projects to help the society fulfill its mission.

We have an annual scientific conference in the summer, rotating the site throughout the United States and Canada. The annual conference is put on in partnership with 4-7 other scientific societies of which BSA takes the lead in managing and planning the conference. We offer over 800 workshops and lectures. In addition the event hosts an Exhibit Show, Scientific Poster contest, society business meetings for the Board of Directors, committees and sections, an Awards reception and various hospitality functions. It is during this time that attendees have an opportunity to exchange ideas with peers, meet new people in the field, and renew friendships from past meetings.

Our Mission:

To promote botany, the field of basic science dealing with the study and inquiry into the form, function, development, diversity, reproduction, evolution, and uses of plants and their interactions within the biosphere. To accomplish this mission, the objectives of the Society are to: sustain and provide improved formal and informal education about plants; encourage basic plant research; provide expertise, direction, and position statements concerning plants and ecosystems; and foster communication within the professional botanical community, and between botanists and the rest of humankind through publications, meetings, and committees.

The breadth of interests of BSA members are reflected in the 16 special interest sections of the Society with which all members have the opportunity to become affiliated. These special interest sections are the Bryological and Lichenological, Developmental and Structural, Ecological, Economic, Genetic, Historical, Microbiological, Paleobotanical, Phycological, Physiological, Phytochemical, Pteridological, Systematic, Teaching and Tropical Biology Sections. There are also four geographic sections (Northeastern, Midcontinent, Southeastern and Pacific).

II. STATEMENT OF NEED
The Botanical Society of America seeks a proposal for audit services for our $2M organization. The chosen firm will be experts in association/nonprofits with experience with organizations receiving government funding.

The BSA transitioned executive directors in October 2017 and requires an audit of the FY2017 finances. In addition, an audit is necessary to fulfill our obligations under federal grant requirements after having spent more than $750,000 in funding from the National Science Foundation during FY2017. (See Code of Federal Regulations Subpart F – Audit Requirements) The association has not completed an audit since 2009.

The BSA is looking to develop a financial infrastructure that can grow as BSA continues to grow. Our staff and activities have evolved since our last audit and our policies and procedures may be in need of updating. We seek increased transparency in operations to allow for better fiduciary oversight.
